

Card Component

OVERVIEW

Cards may contain a photo, text, and a link about a single subject. They may display content containing elements of varying size, such as photos with captions of variable length. Cards display content composed of different elements whose size or supported actions vary.

TYPES OF CARDS

- Basic Card
- Wide Card(pending)
- Icon Card
- Video Card(pending)

WHEN TO USE

- When presenting collections of related content
- Used for grouping information
- Contains interactive content, such as +1 buttons or comments
- Can use bullet points

ANATOMY

A card is built to be modular and flexible. There are three core sections — Header, Body and Footer. Each of these sections can hold the pre-styled text sub-components (card title, card subtitle, card text) or other content including tables, grids, data visualization, buttons, links, forms, etc.

